

Grigory Aleksin

PhD Candidate in Economics – Royal Holloway, University of London

✉ grigory.aleksin@rhul.ac.uk  <https://grigoryaleksin.github.io/>

Research Interest: applied microeconomics, public economics, economics of crime, political economy

ACADEMIC BACKGROUND

PhD in Economics, Royal Holloway, University of London

Sept 2022 – Sept 2026

- Thesis Title: Essays in Applied Microeconomics
- Supervisors: Prof. Arnaud Chevalier & Prof. Melanie Luhrmann
- SeNSS (+2) DTP

MSc in Economics, University of Southampton

Sept 2021 – Sept 2022

- Thesis Title: Market Selection, Financial Crisis and the Productivity Puzzle: Evidence from UK firms
- Distinction, Andrew Dumble Prize 2021–2022, Dean's List 2022

BA in Economics and Business with East European Studies, University College London

Sept 2018 – Jun 2021

- Thesis Title: Entrepreneurship, Creative Destruction and Productivity Growth: a quantitative case-study of Polish industries
- First Class Honours (1st), MB Grabowski Prize 2020–2021, Dean's List 2021

JOB MARKET PAPER

Aleksin Grigory, “Minority Salience and Violent Crime”

This paper investigates how changes in the salience of Muslim communities impact local violent crime rates in England and Wales. Temporal shocks to Muslim salience are driven by terrorist attacks attributed to Muslim perpetrators. Leveraging police recorded crime data at the neighbourhood level, I use a matched difference-in-difference approach that exploits variation in the distribution of Muslim communities and the presence of mosques across England and Wales. The results show that, following a terrorist attack, violent crime increases by up to 13% in “Muslim” neighbourhoods, persisting for about six months. Moreover, I find evidence that the spike in violence is spatially diffuse and spills over to other minority groups. The impact is also larger in areas with greater religious fractionalization and higher support for right-wing parties. More broadly, the salience-crime link holds for other minority groups including Jewish communities, following the intensification of the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

WORKING PAPERS

Aleksin, Grigory, Arnaud Chevalier and Melanie Luhrmann, “Local Social Projects and Neighbourhood Crime”, Working Paper

Aleksin, Grigory, “Closed Doors, Open Questions: Crime and Policing After Court Closures”, Working Paper

PUBLICATIONS

Aleksin, Grigory and Sascha O. Becker. 2024. "Using instrumental variables to establish causality", IZA World of Labor

Aleksin, Grigory and Simen C. Kalbakk-Bohler. 2022. "Environmental Entrepreneurship and Inclusive Growth: A Three-fold Approach to Analysis", International Journal of Technological Learning, Innovation and Development, 14 (1-2): 153-191

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Graduate Teaching Assistant, Royal Holloway, University of London	Sept 2022 – Present
- EC1101: Principles of Economics - EC1103: Applied Economics and Policy - EC2212: Industrial Growth And Competition - EC1108: Data Skills for Economists - EC2209: Econometrics II
Postgraduate Teaching Assistant, University College London, SSEES	Sept 2023 – March 2026
- SESS0007: Introduction to Microeconomics - SESS0008: Introduction to Macroeconomics

WORKSHOPS AND CONFERENCES

2023	Causal Inference Workshop, Royal Holloway (RHUL)
2024	Topics in Applied Economics PhD Workshop, University College London (UCL)
2024	RTG PhD Workshop, University of Duisburg-Essen
2024	4th Annual Southern PhD Economics Conference, Oxford Brookes University
2025	European Society for Population Economics (ESPE) Annual Conference
2026	5th Annual Southern PhD Economics Conference, University of Southampton
2026	Summer School in Economics of Health & Human Capital, Royal Holloway (RHUL)

SKILLS

Qualifications	Accredited Researcher - ONS, Associate Fellow - HEA
Languages	Russian (native), English (native)
Programming Languages	R, Python, LATEX
Data Analysis Tools	R, STATA, Matlab